Dan Wylie

Dan Wylie has owned a 20-unit apartment complex in Santa Rosa since 1998 and continues to strive for the highest water savings possible. His apartment complex uses approximately 15,000 gallons less per month on average compared to apartment complexes with the same number of people. He implements many different strategies to keep the water use low including closely monitoring water use to quickly identify spikes in water use, having onsite maintenance staff regularly check toilets for leaks, promptly repairing any leaks, and installing water efficient fixtures. In 2021, he supported our water saving efforts by distributing letters about the drought to each of the residents and installing drought messaging on all bathroom mirrors.
