BACKGROUND: The “Roseland Village Neighborhood Center” is a public/private partnership project between MidPen Housing and the Community Development Commission, and integrates several elements within a cohesive neighborhood improvement plan. The proposed project includes a 6-lot Subdivision, Major Design Review, Conditional Use Permit, and a Density Bonus for a mixed-use planned development. The project includes 75 affordable units, 100 market-rate units, and 4,000 sq ft of commercial space, 25,600 sq ft of civic space, a 12,700 sq ft Mercado, and a one-acre public plaza on two parcels, 0.59 acre and 6.96 acres respectively, located at 665 and 833 Sebastopol Rd, Santa Rosa, APNs 125-101-031 and 125-111-037.

Project Planner: Gustavson

- Senior Planner Andy Gustavson introduced the project.
- Barry Long, Urban Design Associates, gave a presentation.

The Board approved of the proposed site design of the project including the mix of proposed uses, building location, and site circulation and recommended the applicant bring back a preliminary design plans which provided more windows to engage the Mercado with the plaza; a separate distinct architectural style for each building to create variety; and access to West Street and a sidewalk access the trail. The Board encouraged a pavilion feel to open the buildings to the square, and suggested a mural or possibly color tile facing the plaza. Revisit the berms in favor of usability; the seat planters work well, and the site plan works. Keep the key legend in the plan set, so that the Board can follow the progress of each building on future plan sets.
